There’s a host of interesting revenue stamps from throughout the world. The Lockport, New York company, Merchant’s, issued the stamp (Scott # RS178d) below to document the paying of a penny tax for its Gargling Oil. Note the south Asian headdresses on the two gentlemen getting ready to provide their horse with some Gargling Oil.

Hubba Hubba by Jeff Lough

This may be my last chance to be politically incorrect as your editor. "Hubba Hubba" was and has been an informal American term used to "express approval, excitement or enthusiasm, especially with regards to a person's appearance." Below are some fun covers illustrating this term through the use of special postmarks used in various war time settings during the twentieth century. A visual showing one of those postmark's stamping device is also provided.

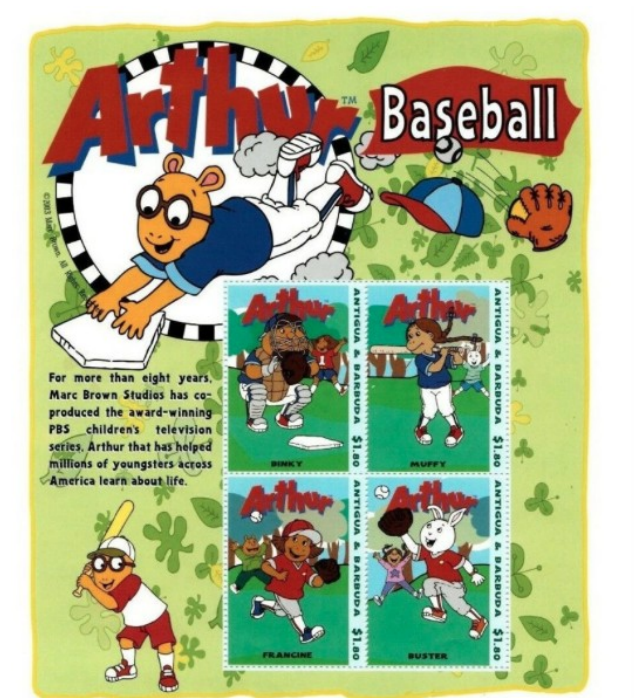

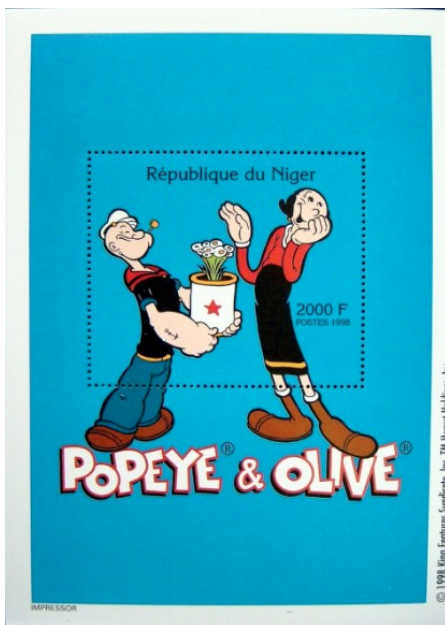

Allegan was a little hamlet located on Cow creek about 10 miles northwest of Lyons the Rice County seat, Note the return address for the Crippled Soldiers Association of the United States in Allegan, Rice County, Kansas. The cover has a nice fancy killer.

National Cartoonist Day

Contemporary souvenir sheets serve several purposes for the issuing country/agency/company. The stamp on the cover was made part of a souvenir sheet to enable the showing of multiple scenes resembling the illustrations found in the iconic comic. The Niger item is in the form of a souvenir sheet in order to provide full body views of the old sailor man and his girl friend without making the image too small, as it would appear on a stamp. And the Antigua and Barbados sheet permits the showing of Arthur's buddies and a comparatively lengthy discussion of the program's creator. The 2000 Portuguese stamp on the front cover depicts not just a great old dog but his creator and long-time master, Chuck Schultz. Peanuts first appeared in 1950 and is more or less based on a childhood dog that ate razor blades, pins and tacks that he had drawn for Ripley's Believe it or Not. Popeye goes back into the past much further than Snoopy. First appearing in 1929 Popeye's creator, Elzie Segar was regarded as having created a consistently humorous cartoon. The PBS children's series, Arthur, was widely viewed, adapted into books and feature length movies and its creator and production staff have received numerous awards. He was influenced by the great painter Marc Chagall and fellow children's book creator Maurice Sendak.

“In 2090”

The other night I had a dream
‘Twas really most uncanny,
I thought I’d floated down the stream
Of time of Twenty Ninety.
As I checked over my new “Scott”
The changes found were many,
Now fifteen books made up the lot
With no stamps priced two-penny.
With eager hands I ruffled throughout
To see the change provided,
Alas, the worst I quickly knew,
Found Cuba still divided.

Poem from the Weekly Philatelic Gossip of July 8, 1944.

And then there are the old time philatelic cartoons:
